

Johnson Testifies Coster's Brother Defrauded Firm

George Vernard-Arthur Musica is said to have received about $5,000,000 from McKesson & Robbins

Others Are Heard

Mackenzie and Virelli Also Appear Before Federal Inquiry Today

New York, Jan. 10 (AP)—The Bridgeport, Conn., office manager of McKesson and Robbins, Inc., testified today that George Vernard-Arthur Musica, brother of F. Donald Coster-Musica, suicide head of the firm, received about $5,000,000 fraudulently from the giant drug concern.

Eugene A. Johnson, the manager, told Assistant State Attorney General Ambrose V. McCall he had wondered about the affairs of the crude drug department several years ago—long before investigators developed the fact that its $18,000,000 in assets were fictitious and that five Canadian warehouses where crude drug inventories were ostensibly stored were non-existent.

Canadian Agent

Vernard-Musica was Canadian agent for the firm, operating through the fictitious British firm of W. W. Smith and Co., and Manning and Co., of Montreal. The sums paid to him were supposedly for commissions on sales and purchases. Vernard-Musica is held on charge of violating the federal securities act by filing a false financial statement.

Johnson also disclosed that an accurate estimate of Coster-Musica's defalcations never may be available because 80 per cent of warehouse invoices for 1938 and the bulk of cancelled checks of the crude drug department over a period of years are missing.

While Johnson was testifying at the attorney general's hearing, Harry Mackenzie, vice president and public relations officer of the firm, was being questioned at the federal building by Assistant U. S. Attorney Irving R. Kaufman.

Another witness for the federal inquiry was Frank Virelli, Jr., son of a lieutenant of state police in Connecticut who is also first marshal for Fairfield county.

The younger Virelli was Coster-Musica's chauffeur. Federal investigators said he was not suspected of any culpable acts but might furnish them with information about his late employer. Coster-Musica committed suicide December 15 in Fairfield, because he often made visits to banks for the corporation head.

Turns to Blackmailing

The federal inquiry today also turned to the blackmailing phases of the Coster-Musica case. Five witnesses were to be questioned by Assistant U. S. Attorney John W. Knox. Coster-Musica, authorities believe, paid out about $50,000 a year to persons who were aware he was a former swindler and ex-convict hiding his past under an assumed name and birthplace.

Johnson, the office manager, testified he joined the drug firm as a cost clerk in 1927 and became manager three years ago. He said he began to wonder about the crude drug department about four or five years ago.

He noticed, he said, that although the company inventories in Bridgeport outside the crude drug business totaled only about $750,000, the crude drug inventories ranged between $4,000,000 and $5,000,000.

This puzzled him, Johnson said, that he spoke to "Mr. Thorn," whom he described as a partner of Price, Waterhouse and Co., the accounting firm which was paid $1,000,000 over a 10-year period to audit the concern's books.

"I asked him if he had checked this situation," Johnson said. "A few days later he told me that he had talked to Coster and that everything was in order."

Decides on Cruise

President Will Sail Away to Blue Caribbean February 18 if Plans Work Out

Washington, Jan. 10 (AP)—President Roosevelt, it was learned authoritatively today, has decided tentatively on a Caribbean cruise starting about February 18.

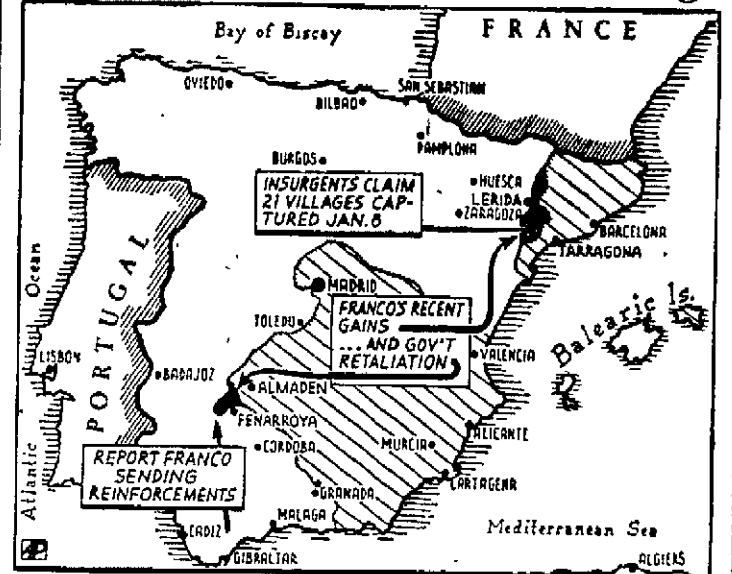

The trip will have the double purpose of enabling him to witness part of the combined fleet maneuvers between Cuba and the South American coast and of attending his relaxation from the strain of getting the new Congress well on its way.

Official sources thought the Cruiser Houston, an old favorite for presidential voyages, would be used.

The President, it was said, probably will embark at Charleston, S. C., February 19 or 20 and spend ten days or two weeks cruising and watching the mimic fleet and air battle in defense of the Panama Canal.

"Black" and "White" armadas already are converging on the Guantanamo Bay area from the east and west coasts.

Spanish War In See-Saw Stage

Insurgents pressed eastward in the northern sector of the Spanish civil war, while government troops pushed to the west in the southern area. ROAD TO ROME:

Chamberlain Sets Forth Upon Visit to Mussolini for Talks

(By The Associated Press)

Prime Minister Chamberlain set forth today on another attempt to soothe Europe's authoritarian powers through face-to-face talks with their leaders—this time with Mussolini in Rome.

The sweeping insurgent offensive in Spain, in which new successes were reported today, was a factor expected to enter the Rome talks in which Chamberlain would like to learn 1939 plans of the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo triangle.

Reports of growing German-Italian efforts to dominate Spain and her strategic Mediterranean outposts cast a shadow over the British prime minister's departure.

With a flourish of the familiar umbrella that accompanied him to Berchtesgaden, Godesburg and Munich last autumn, Chamberlain left carrying with him last minute reports from French Ambassador Charles Corbin that Germany's new fleet of "minnow submarines" was being built to hamper French-British shipping in the Mediterranean.

Authoritative sources in Paris, where Chamberlain and his accompanying foreign secretary, Viscount Halifax, arranged to make a brief stop-over for "tea" in the foreign office, declared the prime minister would advise Mussolini to patch up his quarrel with France over colonies.

That short meeting was to give the two democratic powers a last chance to exchange views before the Rome meeting, in which the Italian press made clear Italy would try to enlist British support for her campaign to gain colonial concessions from France.

Insurgent dispatches reported two of Generalissimo Franco's columns were converging on Tarragona, 50 miles down the coast from Barcelona.

Government reports declared General Jose Miaja's troops in southwest Spain were consolidating positions where they have made advances toward the Portuguese frontier aiming to slice communications lines that link the northern and southern portions of insurgent territory.

Meanwhile, members of the Senate commerce committee were studying the report of the campaign expenditures committee, which charged the WPA with political activity, preparatory to questioning Harry Hopkins tomorrow.

After voting yesterday to request the former WPA administrator to appear, some committee members hinted they were interested in learning how much of the alleged political activity had been known to the "high-ups" here.

The campaign committee's report avoided any criticism of Hopkins personally, although it referred to some points to Aubrey Williams, National Youth Administration chief who was his first assistant.

There appeared no likelihood Hopkins' nomination would be disapproved.

As in the case of Hopkins, speed was expected in action on the nomination of Prof. Felix Frankfurter of Harvard to be a Supreme Court justice. A Judiciary subcommittee started hearings today.

A meeting of another Judiciary subcommittee was called to decide whether hearings would be held on the nomination of former Governor Frank Murphy of Michigan to be attorney general.

Outgrowth of Political Tea
Washington, Jan. 10.—Representative Caroline O'Day (D), New York's only woman member of Congress, appeared in the House yesterday wearing dark glasses, the outcome of a mishap at a political tea last week. While pouring tea, Mrs. O'Day was struck in the eye by the feather on a guest's hat. A physician who treated the injured eye prescribed the dark glasses.

Sectional Strife for Republican Control Jumps to Foreground in State Legislature

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 10 (AP)—The upstate-downstate struggle for dominance of the Republican party was thrust prominently before the Republican-controlled New York state Legislature today.

The split in intra-party sentiment, which already has welded the Republican leadership in several "rural" areas, broke upon the legislative scene with introduction of a bill admittedly designed to vest control of the party's state conventions in upstate counties where, its sponsors said, "the biggest Republican majorities are attained."

The measure, authored jointly by Assemblyman George B. Parsons and Senator William C. Martin, Syracuse Republicans, would make the ratio of delegates to any state or judicial district conventional proportionate to the number of enrolled voters of a party at the last preceding enrollment in any Assembly district.

It was introduced last night in a flood of legislation that engulfed lawmakers, after announcement of committees completed organization of both Senate and Assembly. Among bills or resolutions were those to:

Authorize investigation by a joint legislative committee of the "apparent breakdown" in administration and the "intricate red tape" of the unemployment insurance law, a campaign target for Thomas E. Dewey, Republican gubernatorial candidate.

Urge the United States House of Representatives to reappoint the "Dies" committee on non-American activities with a $150,000 appropriation.

Memorialize the U. S. Senate not to ratify the pending Canadian-American treaty covering construction of a 27-foot ship canal along the St. Lawrence river.

Meanwhile a low-cost "housing" bill sponsored by New York city Mayor Fiorello H. LaGuardia was scrutinized by legislators, preparatory to introduction.

Intended to implement a constitutional amendment approved last November which authorized a $300,000,000 state fund to finance slum clearance and low-cost housing, through loans to municipalities, the measure would appropriate $120,000,000 of which $100,000,000 would go to New York city.

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 10 (AP)—"Heat" records were established or equalled in most of upstate New York today as mild weather prevailed a fourth consecutive day.

Buffalo and Syracuse reported 55 degrees above zero to set new high marks for the date and Rochester's 56-tied a 63-year old record. Even in the usually cold-swept Adirondacks, the temperature ranged from 40 to 50 degrees.

Albany's maximum reading the past 12 hours was 43, 11 degrees lower than the record of 54 established in 1889.

Showdown Nearer On WPA 'Politics,' Economy Issues

First Test of President's Hold on Senate and House Expected to Evolve Over Outstanding Points

Leader Backs FDR

Harrington Says Roosevelt's Request Reasonable, Woodrum Says Not

Washington, Jan. 10 (AP)—Congressional economy advocates and critics of "politics in relief" moved rapidly today toward an initial showdown with Roosevelt's forces over the Works Progress Administration.

Interest in the outcome was heightened on Capitol Hill by the fact that it will afford the first test of the President's strength in both House and Senate.

On the House side, the issue was drawn by Mr. Roosevelt's request for an $875,000,000 appropriation to finance WPA until June 30, and on the Senate side, by his nomination of former WPA Administrator Harry Hopkins to be Secretary of Commerce.

Influential members of a House subcommittee considering the WPA appropriation predicted a smaller sum would be recommended. Some wanted to cut it as low as $500,000,000.

The subcommittee was called together this afternoon to make its decision. Democratic members of the group held a private conference yesterday afternoon with Speaker Bankhead and Floor Leader Rayburn, but there was no indication whether those administration representatives succeeded in holding them in line or whether a compromise figure was agreed upon.

Harrington Backs Roosevelt
WPA Administrator F. C. Harrington declared the sum requested by the President was necessary if WPA was to make no drastic reduction in relief work. He was understood to have advised the subcommittee that at the present 3,000,000-job level there were still 1,000,000 persons eligible for work relief who were not getting it.

Rep. Woodrum (D-Va.), subcommittee chairman, said on the other hand it was his belief that "the WPA can stand a substantial curtailment of its program without causing any great suffering by the people who are in need."

Meanwhile, members of the Senate commerce committee were studying the report of the campaign expenditures committee, which charged the WPA with political activity, preparatory to questioning Harry Hopkins tomorrow.

After voting yesterday to request the former WPA administrator to appear, some committee members hinted they were interested in learning how much of the alleged political activity had been known to the "high-ups" here.

As 12 Communities Aid at Poughkeepsie

Kingston's new 1,500-gallon Mack truck which responded to a call for aid, assisted in bringing the fire under control. For four hours the Kingston pumper, under direction of Chief Joseph L. Murphy and several local firemen, pumped streams on that portion of the building occupied by the fertilizer company which occupied one of the 15 buildings destroyed. Chief Noll of the Poughkeepsie department praised the work of the local firemen and the operation of Kingston's newest fire fighting unit. Unable to get to the river front and pump direct from the river, the apparatus was stationed at a main from which two other pumps were operating, forcing the Kingston equipment to operate at reduced capacity. The plant, assessed at $1,000,000 when it was a going concern, had been taken over by the city at a tax sale and was not insured.

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 10 (AP)—The off-defeated proposal for ratification of the pending federal constitutional amendment to outlaw child labor was plumped before New York's Legislature again today with prospects for the usual bitter debate.

The 1939 resolution was dropped into the hopper by Assemblyman William T. Andrews, Harlem Democrat. Approval of eight more states is needed to enact the amendment.

The 1938 Legislature, which experienced prolonged and intense debate on child labor with the American Labor Party bloc of five assemblymen taking a major part, studied eight proposals dealing with juvenile labor. None was passed.

Use of child labor made goods, however, is banned in New York state under a bill passed in the 1927 session.

With committees in both houses organized and ready for work, 113 bills were dumped into the hoppers of both houses.

Other proposals would: Reduce from 63 to 60 the age when persons may qualify for old age assistance.

Authorize creation of a $200,000,000 state debt available from January 1, 1940, for construction and repair of schools.

Establish a state motor vehicle

La Guardia Places 120 - Million Bid Before Lawmakers

New York, Jan. 10 (AP)—Mayor Fiorello LaGuardia wants the Legislature to lend $120,000,000 to municipalities for a long-range housing program, with $100,000,000 of the money to go to New York city.

He also asks a direct subsidy for 1939 of $1,000,000, two-thirds of it to go to the city.

The proposal, contained in a bill drawn up by his housing committee after two months study and announced yesterday, was made under the constitutional amendment adopted in the last election authorizing the state to raise up to $200,000,000 through bond issues for housing.

The salient features of the program are: Tenants for low-cost projects built under the loan are to be selected from people whose total annual income is less than $1,800, and rent is not to exceed $6 a month per room.

Municipalities are authorized to lend money to multiple-dwelling owners for rehabilitation, subject to local rules.

Municipalities are authorized to use up to 10 per cent of the money for recreational and other public projects.

Detailed administration of the funds is to be in the hands of the localities, and the State Housing Board is to be transformed into a fiscal agency, passing upon the original loans.

Municipalities are to have "home rule" on slum clearance and low-cost housing projects; All projects must be approved by the Board of Estimate and the City Planning Commission or other municipal authority; and All present laws on housing and slum clearance are to be brought into accord with the new housing amendment.

An important part of the New York city plan for use of the money is in helping re-house 1,500,000 persons now living in 63,000 sub-standard tenements.

Laughlin Favors Retention of Act Preventing Shipments to Spain on Grounds That Subversive Forces Would Destroy Democracy—Delegates Give Their Views

Washington, Jan. 10 (AP)—Vigorous pleas for removal and for retention of the embargo on arms shipments to Spain were made at rival mass meetings last night.

Irwin Laughlin, first American ambassador to the Spanish republic, told the group favoring retention that all activities of "subversive forces" in Spain are directed toward destruction of American democracy.

Miss Allen O'Brien of San Francisco, who served as a Red Cross worker for 18 months in the Spanish conflict, protested removal of the ban and pleaded for an early peace. Congressional action would be needed to end the embargo.

Louis J. Kennedy of New Rochelle, N. Y., presided at the meeting in Constitution Hall protesting against any removal of the embargo.

Chairman David I. Walsh (D-Mass.) of the senate naval committee, sat on the platform at the meeting supporting the embargo and later made a radio speech in which he cautioned against an "arms stampede" by congress. He said the nation may be warranted in increasing the peace but not the size of the naval construction program.

Delegates Favor Removal
Delegates representing 274 organizations in 31 states urged removal of the embargo. Many of them visited the capitol earlier in the day and button-held senators and representatives. Former Senator Smith W. Brookhart of Iowa led a demonstration on the capitol steps at which speakers denounced the embargo and Fascist aid to General Franco.

Louis Bromfield, author, assaulted Italy and Germany in an address to the delegates.

Other speakers at the conference attacking the embargo included Leon Henderson, secretary of the federal monopoly committee, and former representatives Jerry O'Donnell of Montana and John Connally of Minnesota.

Persons urging removal of the ban contended the embargo was unnatural and endangered the country by favoring General Franco's side.

Those insisting that the embargo be kept intact argued that any change would destroy neutrality and lend support to Communist forces. One meeting was the national conference to lift the embargo against the Spanish republic. The other was called by the Keep the Spanish Embargo Committee, sponsored by the National Council of Catholic Men.

The former group adopted a resolution for presentation to President Roosevelt and Congress in which it asserted it was "no longer open to question that a majority of our people are not merely willing but insistent" that the embargo be lifted.

This group cited a survey of public opinion which it said showed 76 per cent of the people sympathetic to the Barcelona government. They also interpreted phrases of Mr. Roosevelt's annual message as indicating that strict neutrality was not possible under the law.

Monsignor Speaks
The Rt. Rev. Msgr. Fulton J. Sheen of Catholic University, addressing the Keep the Embargo meeting, said there were two classes of people interested in lifting the ban.

"First, international propagandists, and secondly, true, loyal Americans who believe the Loyalist cause to be just. The first must be exposed; the second must be answered."

Monsignor Sheen criticized the groups he said were promoting the propaganda against the embargo, listing the American

Stocks Fall Back
For Fourth Day

For the fourth consecutive session, stocks lost ground in yesterday's market. Aircraft shares continued to show weakness and at one time Douglas was down three points. Decline was despite favorable business news from several quarters. Volume was 1,100,000 shares. Industrial issues lost 1.35 points, down to 150.19 in the Dow-Jones averages; rails were off .04 point, to 32.50; utilities declined .02 point, to 23.07.

Encouragement was found in estimates of General Motors sales and earnings for the fourth quarter of 1938. Operations in the final three months of the year resulted in indicated earnings of $61,000,000, which would be about 60 per cent of the profit for the entire year. The fourth quarter net is estimated at around $1.37 a common share, vs. 92 cents a share in the last quarter of 1937. Sales totaled $12,000 units for the three months, 39 per cent of the year's total. Net profit for the year 1938 is estimated at $2.10 a share. In the preceding year $4.38 a share was reported. Improvement in operating efficiency and somewhat lower material and supply costs made economically possible price reductions on the 1939 model in the last quarter.

Montgomery Ward & Co. made a showing in December, when total sales of $57,084,529 not only showed an increase of 11.5 per cent over December 1937, but were a record high for any month in the history of the company.

The Armstrong Cork Co. has announced a program for a guaranteed annual income for wage earners during 1939 for those employed with the company for five years or more. These will receive not less than the equivalent of 24 hours' pay each week during 1939. Lesser benefits are provided for workers who have been with the company a shorter time.

The Federal Trade Commission has filed complaint against the U. S. Rubber Co. alleging violation of the Robinson-Patman Act by price discrimination in the sale of auto tires. A joint resolution was introduced in the House directing the FTC to probe methods used by manufacturers on distributing tires to the public.

Steel operations for the week beginning January 9 are scheduled at 51.7 per cent of capacity as against 50.7 per cent in previous week and 27.8 per cent in comparable week in 1938. Railroad operations for the week from every area will meet tomorrow to consider the suggested "postalization" plan for railroad fares. The ICC is expected to reopen the eastern passenger fare case to reconsider the plan.

Selberling Rubber Co. shows net income of $297,494 for fiscal year ended October 31. Compares with loss of $10,443 in previous fiscal year.

Directors of Cuno Press, Inc., yesterday declared a dividend of 75 cents a share on common stock. The company declared an extra dividend of 75 cents on December 14 last and also paid for quarterly dividends of 50 cents each during 1938.

N. Y. O. & W. R. R. shows net loss after taxes and charges of $214,423 for November, and for 11 months, $1,897,299.

New York, Jan. 10 (AP)—Stock market leaders were inspired with mild rallying courage today by an upward reversal in aircrafts.

The list trudged along rather sluggishly until the second hour when buying momentum increased and gains of fractions to around two points were widely distributed.

There was a subsequent slowdown as profit taking intervened and, near the final hour, top marks were substantially reduced. Transfers were at the rate of approximately 800,000 shares, smallest of the year to date.

Bonds put on a quiet and selective recovery. Commodities were mixed. European securities markets did little either way.

Stocks well in front the greater part of the day were Douglas Aircraft, Sperry, Glenn Martin, United Aircraft, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown, Chrysler, General Motors, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Anaconda, Phelps Dodge, Lee Rubber, Westinghouse, U. S. Gypsum, Santa Fe, Great Northern, Illinois Central, U. S. Rubber, Canada Dry, Celanese, Marshall Field and Consolidated Edison.

One of the outstanding events of the Templar year will be the election and installation of officers of Rondout Commandery, No. 52, Knights Templar in the asylum, 230 Wall street, Wednesday evening, January 11, at 8 o'clock.

This will be the annual meeting of the Commandery and will mark the closing of the year's work under the leadership of Sir and the Rev. Clarence E. Brown, Eminent Commander. The installation will be conducted by Sir Charles Grosch, Eminent Grand Generalissimo of the Grand Commandery, State of New York, who is also the zone officer for the zone in which Rondout Commandery is situated. This has been the outstanding year in the history of Rondout Commandery in the entertainment of the 125th Grand Conclave of the Grand Commandery which was held in Kingston June 13-14, 1938. It was an event which Kingstonians will long remember.

As a mark of appreciation Sir and the Rev. Clarence E. Brown has been honored by being asked to be the preacher at the 126th Grand Conclave to be held in Elmira, June 4, 5 and 6, 1939. This is one of the first times in the history of the Grand Commandery that a minister has been chosen outside of the local community for this service. The reports for the year will be given at this installation conclave. After the meeting refreshments will be served. A large attendance of the Sir Knights is expected for this annual meeting.

when PENNIES count—
The Daily Freeman is The Ideal 'Shopping Guide'—

HOW to get the most out of every penny is mighty important to folks who are just starting out. An error in buying judgment that would be considered trivial by anyone else might be tragic for them. They can't afford to make mistakes . . . they can't run the risk of "gold bricks." Every penny counts. Every penny has to do double duty. It's interesting to know (and we can't deny that we're a bit proud!) that The Daily Freeman is making it possible for people like these to get more for their pennies. For the pages of The Daily Freeman are a "Shopping Guide" to values. Every day advertisers offer definite savings on the things all of us need. Criminal Cases Are To Be Heard Next Monday by Traver

The opening session of the January term of County Court opened Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock with County Judge Frederick G. Traver on the bench. Thirty-five of a panel of 36 jurors were present, Cora Anapel of Wawarsing being the only one absent. Eight jurors asked to be excused and their requests were granted.

Excused for the term were Oscar Beach, Anthony Chillum, Carl Dapp, Everett P. Decker, George Hummel, Clarence O'Neal, Ralph Perry, Fred Winters and Charles M. Newkirk. Mr. Newkirk is chief court officer and was excused from jury service in order to take care of his duties.

There were no cases ready for trial on the calendar and Judge Traver made up a day calendar for Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock. There are five cases on the day calendar as follows:

Abe Masors vs. Jennie Goodman, goods sold and delivered. Lawrence Levine for plaintiff and H. Westlake Coons for defendant. Jacob Binder vs. "Sam" Yanowitz, and Blanche Rosenberg, an action for goods sold and delivered. Cleon B. Murray for plaintiff and Charles Rosenberg for defendant.

Mary Voss and Rudolph C. Becker vs. Willywey Coal & Ice Company, Inc., an action for goods sold and delivered. Cleon B. Murray for plaintiff and Cashin & Ewig for defendant.

Jesse Clark, doing business as Clark's Auto Sales, vs. Irving Otis, action on promissory note. Robert Duke for plaintiff and Peter H. Hark for defendant.

Henry Goodwin vs. Edwin Cunningham, action for rent. Cashin & Ewig for plaintiff and Daniel Hoffman for defendant.

Several cases were marked "second Monday" and Judge Traver informed attorneys that such marking would mean that the cases probably would be taken up at the conclusion of the criminal work which will commence next Monday. This will bring on additional work during the week of January 21.

CUPID IN RUSSIA

That British-Russian romance has now come to a most un-Russian happy ending, after suspense and set-backs that would do credit to any heart-throb story. The hero and heroine met, fell in love and married in 1933, when Bryan Grover, a young Englishman, was working in the Soviet oil industry. When he got a job in Persia the Russian government refused to let his wife leave her native land. Grover made many efforts and tried many appeals, but in vain.

The world's attention was called to their plight last November when the husband, after three weeks of flying lessons, bought a plane for $900 and hopped from Stockholm into Russia on an unscheduled and unauthorized flight to rescue his wife.

Young Lochinvar was not successful. The Russians clapped him into prison for six weeks for "invading" their country, then fined him $300 and ordered him to get out and stay out for five years. It looked pretty bad.

However, some official heart must have been touched, for permission was suddenly given the wife to leave and join her husband. Their freedom, reports from Russia say, was granted, after five years of denial, solely because the government was pleased that an outsider had risked his life for a Russian girl. No one but a Russian can understand why it wasn't granted in the first place.

NINE BILLION DOLLARS

Some Americans still remember the thrill that came over them when, early in 1917, they realized that their national government was collecting and spending more than $1,000,000,000 a year. There was no great excitement, but a sense of pride and awe that we had become, governmentally, a "billion-dollar country." It meant extravagance, perhaps, but it also meant financial maturity.

The next year, the war forced expenditure up to more than $12,000,000,000, and in the fiscal year of 1919 the government spent more than $18,000,000,000, while collecting a little more than $3,000,000,000.

We never got back to that mere billion. After the war we jogged along for two years at five or six billions, then for ten years at an average rate of four billions income and a little less outgo. In 1931 the expenditure began rising again, while the income dwindled to two billions—increasing gradually since 1934 to nearly six billions.

We are now, on the basis of expenditure during this and the next fiscal year, ending with June, 1940, a $9,000,000,000 country. But on the basis of income, we seem to be currently a $5,000,000,000 to $6,000,000,000 country. Obviously we must soon collect more, or spend less, or both.

TWO PERILS

A recent poll of American opinion indicated that most Americans, while opposed to both Communism and Nazism, now consider the latter the greater peril.

A current British survey produces the same result, though in a different form. Asked whether they would sympathize with Russia or Germany in case of war between those countries, 85 per cent of the British public favored Russia to 15 per cent favoring Germany.

The American public in response to the same question put to the British people, answers it in almost the same way, favoring Russia by 83 to 17 per cent.

This is an amazing change of front. Except during the World War, when Russia was for a time fighting on the side of the Allies, American opinion has always been far more friendly to Germany than to Russia.

Americans and Britons, of course, are almost unanimously opposed to Communism, but no longer fear it so much, because it has grown weak and is meddling less in other nation's affairs. Nazism, on the other hand, is increasingly stronger, more ruthless and aggressive.

ANTARCTIC PLEASURES

Lincoln Ellsworth, gathering geological specimens in the Antarctic, on islands never before visited by man, seems to be having a good time. He is doing what he likes to do and assembling a useful collection of samples of the rocks of that region. Open water conditions down there are better than usual. Seaplane and boat make a fine combination for this sort of work, observation from the former quickly revealing passageways through the ice pack that it would be hard to find otherwise.

We suppose Commander Byrd and Sir Hubert Wilkins will be heading for the South Polar region again some of these fine days, too. There seems to be a polar lure that is irresistible, once it has been experienced.

The great host of people who wouldn't dream of tackling Antarctic exploration get more pleasure from their fireside adventuring than formerly. That is because radio makes possible day-by-day reports, and the adventures of the hardy explorers can be followed as they take place instead of waiting months or years for news. One almost gets the idea that such exploring is neither difficult nor dangerous because recent expeditions have made excellent records in health and safety. Still, we don't hear of any tourist cruises to the Antarctic yet.

A boy next door may be right when he says the trouble with dictators is that their fathers never spanked them enough when they were little.

Individuals and nations that want to get along together, or have to, must avoid saying the mean things they think about each other.

A visitor in Washington might think Missouri has sent more than its normal quota of congressmen this year.

COMFORTABLE SHOES AID HEALTH

As medical students we were taught that the reason that gall stones were formed more often in women than in men was because women wore tight corsets. Four times as many women had gall stones as men. That this was true to a great extent has been proven by the fact that since women have done away with tight corsets there are only half as many cases among women as before; the ratio now being 2 cases in women to 1 in men.

Whether it was a desire to be more comfortable or to avoid gall stones that caused women to do without tight corsets may never be known but avoiding these tight bands about the abdomen has allowed the liver to do its work properly. The lungs can now come down and press or squeeze the liver every time a breath is taken. Also, with no tight band about the abdomen, the soft liver and also the gall bladder are squeezed by any exercise or working of the muscles about abdomen and ribs. And the squeezing of the liver and gall bladder causing more bile to be poured into small intestine stimulates digestion and prevents constipation.

What has been accomplished for the liver and gall bladder by giving them more room or freedom is now being attempted for the feet in Great Britain, as a movement is under way to do away with tight shoes. The attention of the Minister of Health is to be drawn to the large amount of preventable foot trouble caused by the wearing of ill-shaped shoes. In some districts already, where there were special foot clinics, action has been taken to deal with the problem of proper footwear.

When we remember that we need our feet to get places and it is because we go about that we are able to make a living and enjoy life it can be seen that to have good feet is about as important as having a good head. Feet crippled by tight shoes—corns, hammer toes, foot arch which should be raised like a claw is down flat on the ground—can cause of the pain and discomfort, actually cause a nervous breakdown. So important to health has foot comfort become that our shoe manufacturers, while still trying to make shoes attractive to the eye, are making a wider shoe with the inner side of the foot almost a straight line instead of being pointed outward.

NEW YEAR'S LOVE

by Angela Loden

The Characters

Noel Marchand, a beautiful young actress.
Allan Collings, the man she loves.
David Norris, her fiancé.

Yesterday: David tells Noel he is jealous of Allan.

Chapter 23

Beautiful Vagueness

NOEL'S angry argument with David was one emotional outburst too many for her distraught nerves. She had told him defiantly: "I love Allan Collings!"

And now she burst into hysterical weeping. David for a moment seemed moved by her distress but his anger at her was not completely abated. He, too, seemed driven by some force of resentment, stronger than his own reasoning. He had turned white at her significant words.

"Noel, don't be a fool! You're dramatizing a silly infatuation. I don't believe you!"

Was he saying that to save his own pride, or to convince Noel? For he went on, in a more conciliatory tone:

"I understand you so well, my dear. His accident has appealed to your romantic imagination. And you're unsprung by the unfortunate experience."

David took Noel by the shoulders, not in an affectionate way, but as though he would force her to see the situation as he was presenting it. He looked at her long and searchingly, shook her body slightly. She tried to pull away. His hands were gripping her tightly.

"You're not the person who'd waste your affections on a man who didn't care about you! Have you forgotten her marrying Mrs. Schuyler?"

"That stung deep into Noel's consciousness. She tore away from his hold finally with a fierce resentful gesture.

"You're trying to hurt me as much as you can, aren't you?" she asked bitterly.

At David's next words, "Have you spared me, Noel?" she cringed. Her whole attitude changed. The tears stopped flowing. Her eyes rested on his tortured face. He was suffering over her just as she did over Allan. Everything was a mess! Why had she made that crazy, impetuous confession?

"I'm sorry!" She appeared to wilt as she said it. The rebellion was out of her. Her lips drooped in despair. "I'm terribly, terribly sorry, David. More than I can tell you. But at least you know the truth."

"We won't talk about it any more tonight," was David's final decision. He didn't touch her, except with his eyes that now, with the fury gone out of them, seemed to caress her. "It's been unfortunate, this whole quarrel—the first one we've ever had. Noel, I'm sorry, too, that it happened."

"Soon, we'll have forgotten all about it," He hesitated before he added, "When we're away from all this."

After he'd gone, Noel realized he was still counting on their marriage—with all that she'd told him. How could she? she thought, wondering. Asking herself if she would take Allan on similar terms, she was very much afraid that she would.

If Noel had any embarrassment about seeing David again, he made it easy for her. No word about Allan, no mention of their argument.

"I'll be out of town for the weekend, my dear," was all that he said.

Out Of Danger

ALLAN improved steadily. He was out of danger! It was joyous news for Noel. Since her quarrel with David, in a penitential way, she had not gone out to Westbury. Her daily telephone calls to Mrs. Marchand kept her posted.

"Dr. White says you can see him tomorrow if you wish," he said for you to come out here," Mrs. Marchand suggested on Saturday.

Convenient? Noel said she'd be there. Nothing would have kept her away, though she knew there was no wisdom in such a decision. Allan was thinner and looked so awfully weak when she was admitted to his room. The swelling on his lips had gone down, the cut was healing.

"Noel, I'm so glad you came." His voice was weak and thin, too. Without moving his body, flat on the bed, he stretched out his hand, holding hers firmly.

All Noel could say was "Hello, Allan," as she smiled down at him. She was about to take his hand and cradle it against her breast. She wanted to cry, too, gazing down at him.

"Sit down, bring your chair to the bed." He reached for her hand again, as she sat close to him.

"You gave us quite a shock, for a while," it sounded insane as she said it. She was guarding her words carefully.

"Mother told me how good you were, Noel."

Each time he said her name, he gave it a warm, personal meaning. She loved hearing it from his lips. "It was pretty bad for her. I'm lucky, I guess, from what they tell me."

"And now you'll be better soon, and out of the hospital," Noel was managing a forced cheerfulness.

OLIVE BRIDGE

Oliver Bridge, Jan. 7—Those who attended the New Year's Eve party at Mrs. Irene Keator's were: Mr. and Mrs. Reginald Davis and daughters, Evelyn and Phyllis, Mr. and Mrs. George Bishop and grandsons, George Raymond and Paul Snyder.

The ceremony was saddened by the death of the late George B. Snyder, who made his home with his daughter, Mrs. Harold G. Davis. The funeral was held from his brother's home in Saugerties Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Interment in Mt. Marion Cemetery.

The Ladies' Aid held its regular monthly meeting at the home of Mrs. William C. Davis on Wednesday afternoon. A large group was present. The meeting

"Were you in this room when I came back from the operation or did I imagine it?" Allan's voice had a dreamy quality.

"Yes, I was here, Allan. Don't you remember, you spoke to me?"

"Did you call me dear? And did you mean it, like that, Noel?" His clasped on her hand tightened. His fingers were pressing into her knuckles. She couldn't meet his eyes—they were asking so many things. She tried to focus her glance on the bandage round his forehead.

"Did you, Noel?" he asked again. "Yes," the answer was a faint whisper.

"Say it now," he pleaded, forcing her eyes to meet his.

She tried to laugh it off. The effort was a failure.

"Dear," she said lightly. "Not like that." Awkwardness passed. She bent her head toward him—she had to steel herself against touching his lips then. "Allan, my dear," All her feeling for Allan went into the words.

"Noel, darling," He said that again, too. He caught her hand to his face, kissed the palm, held it there against his lips.

Noel was so thrilled she couldn't think of anything except that Allan was calling her darling!

"All the time I've been lying here, I thought about you, Noel. In the darkness I dreamed you were in the room and during the days I waited for you to come."

"I came—you knew I would." Her heart was bursting with happiness. It would only last for this heavenly moment—she couldn't think further ahead.

"You're so wonderful—I've known that a long time," Noel held her breath then. What did it mean? He was in love with Elaine Schuyler. He was marrying Elaine! Why was he saying this to her now? Now, when it was too late! Perhaps it would have told her the meaning—but someone knocked on the door. Noel pulled her hand away, sat up straight in the chair. She tried to compose herself, to still the wild beating of her heart.

I'm Dying Now

"COME in," Allan's voice was husky. The summons held an echo of his emotion.

"Oh, my dear, I'm sorry! I didn't know you had visitors." Elaine in a soft blue suit with a gay little gray hat walked into the room, rested on his bed, and gazed at the flowers. She was a beautiful picture as she stood there. A patch of adhesive tape covered part of her chin. She wore it as a decoration. Noel stood up.

"Good afternoon, Mrs. Schuyler," she said formally, making way at the bedside for Elaine.

"Hello, Allan," Elaine said. "I've been cheering you up lately." Elaine laid the flowers on the foot of the bed and with a proprietary gesture stooped over Allan, kissing his bandaged forehead.

"My poor dear," she murmured soothingly. "I'll never forgive myself for doing this to you. I'll do penance by the rest of my life." She turned then to Noel.

"I'd saved if anything happened to Allan," she said dramatically.

I'm dying now, Noel thought, watching you there with him. She moved toward the door.

"Don't go yet, Allan said, his voice so urgent that even Elaine looked up in surprise. Her manner was frosty.

"If Miss Marchand has to leave, we mustn't detain her, Allan," she reminded him.

Noel came back to the bed. She didn't offer to shake hands with the patient. "Goodbye, Allan. I'm glad you're recovering so quickly."

"You'll come back tomorrow?" he asked, pleading with his eyes and his voice.

"Yes, I'll come back tomorrow," Noel looked at Elaine. "We must pamper the invalid," she said smilingly and left them together.

But the next day her flowers came instead, with a card that read: "Dear Allan, I wanted to visit you today but I'm detained in town with business I can't postpone. I'll see you soon, Noel."

Those few moments with Allan in the hospital room were a beautiful vagueness she clung to. "I'm glad it's all over," she said smilingly, but she couldn't remember the rest of her life. Elaine had brought reality in with her—Noel couldn't dismiss Elaine from her conjecturing.

"I'm having costumes made for Rita," Swanstrom told Noel when she went to the theater. "She can't wear any type of clothes."

"Rita knows then she's taking my place?" As Noel said it she realized that in a few weeks she'd be leaving the play—to marry David. "Do the others know, too?"

"Not yet—I asked Rita to keep the secret for a while."

Noel knew that was too much to ask of Rita. So she said to Gerald during the second act intermission, "I'm leaving the play in three weeks, Gerald."

"I should say I'm sorry to hear it—but we all know you're marrying David. He's a swell guy, Noel. I hope you'll be happy."

Noel's eyes filled. "I hate the thought of leaving all this," she offered weakly.

Gerald accepted her explanation. "But you'll have the real thing, Noel; this is only make-believe."

NEW CONGRESS SWINGS INTO ACTION

America Faces Problem of Providing Non-Political, Economical Relief, and Answer Is Not Simple.

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, Jan. 10.—America is face to face with the problem of how to conduct a system of relief which shall give the utmost assurance of non-political and economical management.

Considerable support has been developed on Capitol Hill for the idea of "returning relief to the states," but this is easier said than done. The answer is not as simple as that, and there is no certainty that, by mere return to the states, the evils which have grown up will necessarily be eliminated.

If by return to the states is meant for example, return to the state and city governments, then it merely means that federal money will be turned over to Tammany organizations in New York and similarly constituted political organizations in such cities as Chicago, Kansas City and the like.

It is to be distributed, and merely transferring the machinery from the national capital to the state capitals does not do away with the political aspects. There is no reason to believe that political appointees of the state house machines are any more immune from the temptations of political manipulation of the relief system than any body else. Also, since federal funds are to be appropriated, it is customary for the federal government to supervise the distribution.

It has been suggested as another plan that non-partisan local boards be set up as advisory to the state or local governments, but experience shows that where there is no power there is apt to be no responsibility. The non-partisan boards would not be able to handle the relief problem unless they had complete responsibility for administration, and the federal government could hardly turn over $2,000,000,000 of relief money, as called for in the appropriation for the next fiscal year, unless it had its own personnel directly responsible to the federal government.

The difficulties with the relief problem administration are numerous, but it is about time that the political nature of the relief system were examined in the light of actual history. When it was proposed originally, for instance, that relief be kept out of politics, the Senate itself insisted that state WPA administrators be subject to confirmation by the Senate. This meant that the individual senators had to be consulted, and it also meant that, as a rule, senators felt close enough to the picture to get some of their personal friends into key jobs. Then, when campaigns came, it was natural for these politically obligated persons to try by every device possible within the law to be of aid to their patrons.

When one considers what should be done about the administration of the relief system, one illustration of a non-political way of handling it comes to mind is the Bureau of Internal Revenue. The rules and regulations are so explicit, the personnel in the administrative end is so carefully chosen and so carefully weighed as to honesty and integrity that it is rarely there is any scandal. The United States army and navy are also administered by capable personnel. A combination of the technique whereby the military and naval organizations of the country have handled billions of dollars' worth of federal purchases and property, and the technique whereby the Bureau of Internal Revenue has collected honestly billions of dollars of public money would probably furnish the answer to the whole difficulty.

But, even with honest administrators, there is need for policies which will remove most of the present complaint. Rules and regulations regarding the disbursement of public funds to the needy are one thing, but policies which govern actual work relief come in a different category. The army has handled, and so has the navy, large government jobs in which labor is employed. There is no reason why the government as an employer should have a different technique in one category than in another. Work relief projects will tend to be special cases and not permanent work anyway. Some plan whereby the army may handle the administration of relief—the President has placed a high army officer in charge already—will probably give maximum assurance of non-political management, and, as for economy, this is a matter of constant checking and the closest cooperation with state and city governments. If local management is ultimately decided upon, it may be that advisory boards consisting of private citizens identified with the community chest and Red Cross might collaborate effectively with local branches of a federal administrative organization, but to turn the whole thing over to state and city political machines will not end politics in relief.

Special experiments are being made for the Temple of Religion and Tower of Peace at the 1939 California World's Fair to be sure lighting will harmonize with the purpose of the building.

HUDSON RIVER STEAMBOATS

These articles are written from the collection of George W. Murdock, veteran marine engineer.

No. 74—Commodore

The steamboat "Commodore" was constructed to serve the Long Island Sound route, plied that route for only seven years, and at the duration of 18 years of service was lost in a severe gale on the Sound.

The wooden hull of the "Commodore" was built in 1849 by Bishop and Son of New York, and her engine was the product of the Allaire Iron Works of the great metropolis. She was 275 feet long, breadth of beam 32 feet, depth of hold 11 feet. She was rated at 900 tons, and was pushed through the water by a vertical beam engine having a cylinder diameter of 65 inches with an all foot stroke.

The "Commodore" was known as a fine specimen of marine architecture, being well built and comfortably furnished with sleeping accommodations for a large number of persons and an excellent freight carrying capacity. She was constructed for the New York and Boston Transportation Company to run between New York and Stonington on Long Island Sound, and she continued on that route for seven years—until 1854, when she was replaced by the steamboat "Plymouth Rock."

In 1855 the "Commodore" made her appearance on the Hudson river. She plied the route between New York and Troy under the command of Captain Levi Smith, who was formerly the

Three Women's Clubs Meet on Monday

Sorosis, Twentieth Century Club and the Olympian Club held their regular meetings Monday at the homes of the members.

Sorosis is studying "Community Relations" during the month of January and held its first discussion on the topic Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Charles Ramsey on Albany avenue. The paper on "Budgeting and Marketing" was presented by Mrs. Arthur Fritog.

Mrs. Fritog presented some of the general rules for budget making and explained that the primary purpose of a budget is to decide the family question of how the money should be spent. She also gave a number of helpful guides to intelligent buying. The meeting next week will be held at the home of Mrs. Harry Parker Van Wageningen on John street.

Olympian Club met Monday at the home of Miss Anna McCullough on Orchard street for a continuation of its study of Asia Minor. Four readings were given by the members. Mrs. Charles Nickerson gave a reading, "Among the Bethlehem Shepherds." Mrs. Arthur Cragin read the "Twenty-Third Psalm" with a musical accompaniment played by Mrs. Lester Decker. Miss Claire Ostrander read "Where the Snow Falls," and Miss Sadie Schutt read "Auntie's Pageant of Jerusalem."

One of the most interesting features of the meeting was the display by the members of various curios obtained in the Holy Land among which were many unique and interesting articles such as beads, Arab headresses and books. The next meeting of the club will be held at the home of Mrs. A. L. Berwin.

Twentieth Century Club studied the Apocalyptic Literature at its meeting held Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. G. N. Wood on Tremper avenue. During the business session the president, Mrs. Elmer Van Tassel, reported that the club had contributed to the Tuberculosis Hospital during the Christmas season, honey, 33 glasses of jelly and candy.

The roll call included discussions of the southern states of Virginia and Alabama. Miss Sarah W. Hasbrouck told of her trip last May to Tuscaloosa where she attended the graduation exercises of the University of Alabama and also discussed briefly the negro population, habitation and the main products of the state.

Mrs. Robert L. Sisson described a trip along the Shenandoah Valley, reviewed the colonial history of the state and remarked that seven of the United States presidents have come from the state of Virginia.

The Apocalyptic literature was described by Mrs. E. O. Allen who gave excerpts from several books of the Apocrypha and the book of Revelations in the New Testament. She also quoted chapter 21 as being the most beautiful section of the Apocrypha.

In the absence of Mrs. William Cranston, Mrs. J. C. Fraser read selections from noted authors which traced the history of the Apocrypha and also read the story of "Tobit."

In addition to the regular program, Mrs. C. B. Dickinson read an interesting story from the New York Herald Tribune in which Dean Gates of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine made a plea for the inclusion of the Apocrypha in the Bible.

The next meeting of the club will be held at the home of Mrs. Harry B. Walker.

Vatican State Holds Records

Is First in Percentage of Autos, Radios and Even Soldiers.

VATICAN STATE.—The pontifical state, newest and smallest of nations, holds more records than any other country in the world.

Whether it be telephones, automobiles, radios, soldiers or even prosaic elevators and refrigerators, it is the Vatican City that has more of the per capita than any other country.

Although there are only 600 names listed in the Vatican telephone directory, it is estimated that each inhabitant averages more than one phone apiece. With a population estimated slightly above the 700 mark, the per capita rate is roughly .85. The United States, with 15,295,832 telephones, is far behind with approximately one-eighth of a phone per person.

Actually the papal state's average is higher than .85, because many of the phones connected with Pope Pius' private and official apartments and other interdepartmental hookups are not listed in the directory.

Fifteen Outside Lines.

The Vatican also has 15 lines with the outside world, which in this case is Italy. There is no country that can boast of such a high average of interurban lines for its population.

The Vatican has 32 electrically driven elevators and in a few months the figure will be increased to 35. Although there are about 100 buildings in the small territory, two-thirds are small one and two story structures used as small offices and residences for Vatican employees.

This means that there is one elevator for each of the larger buildings. Yet 20 years ago the Vatican State could only boast three elevators and all of the hydraulic type. King Edward VI rode on one of these old-fashioned lifts when he came to see the then-reigning pope early in the Twentieth century.

Boy Still on Job.

The fat, pompous elevator boy who piloted King Edward to one of the upper floors is still on the job. His job has been greatly simplified. Instead of juggling on a cable, all he does now is to press buttons and modern science takes care of the rest.

It is estimated that there are more than 200 automobiles in the miniature state. It is calculated that there are two cars for every seven inhabitants. Even the United States, which boasts of one automobile for every 4.8 inhabitants, cannot match this mark.

It is estimated that there is an average of one radio and one electric refrigerator per Vatican family.

Although the Vatican can be considered the most peaceful of states, on the surface it gives the opposite impression of being armed among the most military. Its army makes up about two-thirds of its entire population. Even Russia, Germany, Italy and Japan, which are considered the most heavily armed, fall far behind. However, the Vatican army, composed of Swiss, pontifical and noble guards and papal gendarmes, does not possess a single cannon, a machine gun, an airplane or even a tank. That in itself is another record.

'Birth Certificate' Valid

Delaware Still Insists

DOVER, DEL.—Delaware is prepared to defend again the validity of its "birth certificate."

New Jersey tried unsuccessfully in the United States Supreme court and in the English courts to prove that the parchment deed granted William Penn 100 years ago was turned over by Penn to James, duke of York, and that the present boundaries of Delaware are not correct.

An announcement at Trenton, N. J., disclosed the state intends to bring an expert from London, William LeHardy, to examine papers New Jersey claims will show that Penn made the transfer, and that he never received another grant in its place.

The original parchment deed establishing Delaware's boundaries is preserved in the state house here.

Giant Lemons Displayed

NEW ORLEANS.—Lemons that the grower, Fred Smith, of Myrtle Grove, claimed would make half a gallon of lemonade each were displayed here. The lemons, of the Ponderosa variety, were from 15 to 20 inches in circumference.

First Football Game

Of the first football game played in America, there is no record. There is, however, record of the first intercollegiate football game in this country. This was played between Rutgers and Princeton, at New Brunswick, N. J., November 13, 1869. Rutgers won 6 goals to Princeton's 4. A return match was asked for by Princeton and the second game was played on November 20, Princeton winning this time with a score of 6 to 0. Earliest American football rules were patterned after soccer.

Goats Liked Coffee

There are 140 references to goats in the Bible. Discoverer of the stimulating properties of the coffee bean. An Arabian herder noticed one afternoon that the members of his flock were unusually playful after having nibbled at the berries of the coffee bush; the fellow investigated, being of an inquiring turn of mind, and thus coffee drinking began. Zoologist had a kind word for the goat. So did that other able thinker, the Gautama Buddha. So, for that matter, did Confucius.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

Breaks Case

Syracuse, N. Y.—Police hurried to the scene when an anonymous phone call informed them an automobile with "the front covered with blood" was standing before a downtown office building. Patrolman Frank Corbett found the "death car" without difficulty, but a close inspection showed the "blood" to be raspberry jelly. "Just a little traffic jam," Corbett reported to headquarters.

ings and loan association was organized he was one of the members of the first board of directors which position he had held continuously until the time of his death. He was also a member of several important committees of the association, and was always deeply interested in home building and home owning in Kingston.

Mr. Hammond for more than half a century was an active member of the Roundout Presbyterian Church, having at times served as president of the board of trustees of the church and on various church committees.

During the many years he was in the employ of the steamboat company and the years he was with the savings and loan association he became widely and favorably known, and his advice was always sought on many matters of importance to the organizations with which he was connected. Mr. Hammond was not a fraternity man as the word is generally understood, but had a sympathetic nature and his sound common sense made him one of the outstanding men of Kingston. In his death the city has lost one of its most representative men. Friends may call at the home Thursday from 3 to 5 and from 7 to 9 p. m.

Charles M. Amato Awaits Grand Jury

health and a fine physical specimen. A test of the blood and urine showed that he was in an advanced state of intoxication at the time of his death.

There was no skull fracture the doctor testified, and the hemorrhage came from a blow on the left side of the face which was swollen and discolored. There were no bruises on the back of the skull.

Attorney Cook asked if Rehnstrom had fallen against some hard object it would not have caused the hemorrhage, and Dr. Van Gaasbeek agreed that it would.

Dr. Van Gaasbeek in reply to questions stated it was also unusual for blows of the fist to cause the hemorrhage.

Chief of Police J. Allan Wood testified that he had lodged the complaint against Amato after talking with witnesses.

Carputo's Testimony

Thomas Carputo of East Union street, who was one of the men in the restaurant at the time, said that Rehnstrom came in with two men and ordered drinks and that they were served with beer.

He testified that Rehnstrom ordered more drinks and Amato refused to serve them, and that Rehnstrom then became abusive and started to call Amato vile names and said he would "get him" and that Amato struck Rehnstrom in the face and then walked from behind the bar.

As Amato walked from behind the bar Rehnstrom, who was facing the bar, turned so that he stood with his back to the bar and between two of the stools that stood in front of the bar. These stools were clamped to the floor.

Amato, according to Carputo, struck Rehnstrom seven or eight times in the face and head and Rehnstrom fell to the floor between the stools and the bar.

The witness helped pick Rehnstrom up and sit him in a chair. Rehnstrom was unconscious and was bleeding from the nose. Carputo said he wiped Rehnstrom's face with a wet towel handed him by Amato.

Carputo said that one of the men who entered the barroom with Rehnstrom was Pete Malla but he did not know who the other man was.

Cross examined by Mr. Cook Carputo said that after Amato had struck Rehnstrom seven or eight times that he walked back behind the bar leaving Rehnstrom standing in front of the bar. As Amato walked back of the bar Rehnstrom slumped to the floor.

Sidney Kantrowitz Appears
Sidney Kantrowitz of Chambers street, who was in the barroom at the time, told his version of the fracas. He said that when Rehnstrom slumped down he fell with his back to the bar between two stools.

Cross examined by Mr. Groves, Kantrowitz said Rehnstrom after being served with a small beer had asked for another drink stating that he was good for 30 or 40 beers, and that Amato said he was not. Then it was that Rehnstrom began to call Amato vile names and made a pass at Amato which landed on Amato's cheek. Then Amato returned the pass and then walked from behind the bar and struck Rehnstrom several times.

Kantrowitz said that after Rehnstrom had slumped down that Amato had told him to go and get a policeman and he had walked out as far as the Chop House without finding an officer. He then returned to the barroom and said he had not seen a policeman. Then he went out and telephoned for the police.

Chief Wood was then recalled by Attorney Cook and asked if Amato had made a statement the evening in question. The chief replied that Amato had and that the district attorney had the original.

Mr. Cook asked the chief to produce a copy of the statement which was objected to by Mr. Bruhn, but the court ruled that the chief could produce a copy if he had one.

The copy was then produced and offered in evidence by Mr. Cook, who then attempted to have other statements taken that night by the police introduced but the court refused.

There was no other evidence introduced and Attorney Cook moved to dismiss on the ground that sufficient evidence had not been introduced to substantiate the charge of manslaughter in the first degree.

Judge Cahill denied the motion and had Amato called before the bar and informed him that he could make a statement in his own behalf if he so desired.

Mr. Amato replied that his attorneys would answer for him, and Attorney Groves said that Amato waived the right to make any statement at this time. Judge Cahill then held Amato for grand jury action.

During the hearing the court room was jammed to the doors, with many forced to stand.

Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 10 (AP)—Staid Harvard is willing to provide a course on marriage guidance for its undergraduates—but they mustn't expect mention of "necking" and "petting." Oak Ridge Man Sentenced For Public Intoxication

Michael Haney, 64, of Oak Ridge, near Ellenville, was sentenced to 60 days in the county jail today in police court when he pleaded guilty to public intoxication.

In sentencing Haney, Judge Cahill informed him that he was fortunate that a more serious charge had not been lodged against him. Haney had been picked up after he had used indecent language to an 8 year old girl.

Judge Cahill said that he had talked with the little girl and had decided not to allow her to testify in open court as to what happened.

Negro Pleads Not Guilty To Charge of Assault

Rawson "Soldier" Leigh, a negro of 35 Murray street, pleaded not guilty to assault in the third degree when arraigned today before Judge Matthew V. Cahill in police court. The hearing was adjourned to January 13.

Chooses Jail

Buffalo, N. Y., Jan. 10 (AP)—Edward Bartkowiak began a year in jail today in preference to marrying a 17-year-old girl. The girl had pleaded with City Judge John D. Hillery for leniency when Bartkowiak was tried on charges of stealing railroad tie plates, and confessed her love for him. Judge Hillery suspended sentence and put the 24-year-old defendant on probation when he promised to wed his champion. But Bartkowiak changed his mind and told the court yesterday that he preferred jail.

Mrs. Parks Contends Roof Of Her Auto Was Too Low

New York, Jan. 10 (AP)—The complaint of Mrs. A. A. Parks, publisher of the Poughkeepsie Star and Enterprise, that the roof of her custom-built automobile body was too low for women with upswEEP- ing hair and men with top- pers taken under advisement yesterday by Justice Thomas J. Cuff, Queens supreme court.

Brewster and Company, body manufacturers of Long Island City, had sued Mrs. Parks for $600 on a $5,000 body. Mrs. Parks acknowledged that she had paid only $4,400, but demurred at paying more because she said the roof was too confining.

The company contended the body was built to Mrs. Parks' specifications. Mrs. Parks is publisher of the Poughkeepsie Star and Enterprise and Eagle-News.

Immortals Look On
Wellsville (AP)—Village fathers conduct municipal business here under the quieting influence of a committee of literary immortals. After remodeling the old library into a municipal building, they decided they could not afford to chisel away the names, carved in stone, of Goethe, Browning, Longfellow, Tennyson, Schiller and others which grace the headstones above the building windows.

Hollywood

Sights And Sounds

By Robin Coom

HOLLYWOOD—This is open season on "ten best." Everybody's doing it. But not Ferdinand. And not me, either.

Ferdinand and I, we're going to sit around a while today and smell the pretty flowers of the year's cinematic crop—and try to forget the smell of some productions that were not exactly flowers.

The trouble with "ten best" lists is that they're so all-fired arbitrary. You pick out ten—and it's just the same as saying that the rest weren't so hot. Well, maybe there weren't even ten first-rate movies this past year—but there was a bumper crop of pictures that didn't waste your time, that gave entertainment, and, in one or more respects, were exceptional.

When I try to think of movies I'd like to see again—and that's as good a test as any—I can't get away from "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs." Or from "You Can't Take It With You."

But I could look too at "The Citadel," and "If I Were King," and "The Young in Heart," and "Alexander's Ragtime Band," and "Boys Town," and the Deanna Durbin number, "Mad About Music," and "Four Daughters," and "Test Pilot"—and, but, see, there's ten already.

And there are others. I wouldn't sell "Jezebel" short, or "Robin Hood," and for a couple of less pretentious but fine films I can't forget "A Man to Remember" and "Yellow Jack." "Marie Antoinette," despite its excessive length and its overdose of glitter, had its points.

CAUGHT with nothing better to do, I wouldn't mind another look at Hepburn in "Holiday," at Danielle Darrieux in "The Rage of Paris," at Hedy Lamarr in "Angels," the latter mainly because I wouldn't mind a look at Hedy Lamarr any time. "Angels with Dirty Faces?" Sure thing—and "Submarine Patrol" too. Just one Astaire-Rogers thing ought to be in a list of pleasant memories—and I'll take "Carefree."

There's one picture I wouldn't see again but would put down as the year's most significant—and that is Walter Wanger's "Black-Ad," it spoke out forcibly in a medium that had seldom spoken out, against war.

THIS is the time of year, too, when it's customary for everybody to name a "best performance" or two. I'm willing to let the Academy hand out the Oscars, but if anybody turned in a better job than Robert Donat's in "The Citadel" I didn't see it. And I suppose the ladies' award should go to Bette Davis for "Jezebel" and "The Sisters"—unless you bunch the splendid, shining work of Margaret Sullavan in several films.

Entry blanks will be distributed shortly for that Golden Gloves show in Kingston. Winners here will go to Albany. Then a trip to San Francisco for the champs. Here's a real chance for Monk Armstrong and Charley Raigns, the sockers who belted their way to Boston in the Diamond Belts. Too bad Charles Perry is back in Philly. What fun there'll be when radio reporters do that Louie-Lewis fight. Miami did something to Mike Jacobs. He returned, wearing one of those Toleman hats. Really, he looks like a Princeton freshman. That roaring is by Van Mungo sounding off about that $5,000 contract he has received from the Dodgers. Jimmy Fox is starting the 1939 season with perfect timing. He made his try for that $40,000 salary just as President Roosevelt moved for more and better spending.

Sid Lutin of the city recreation department thinks that Leonard Barmann game will be the feature of the basketball program at the auditorium tonight. Dolly Teslo, the court director at White Eagle Hall hopes for a crowd tonight. His club is taking on the Rosendale Firemen. Saturday the Polish tappers travel to

Dodger Contract

New York, Jan. 10 (AP)—Van Mungo and his employers, the Brooklyn Dodgers, have officially launched the pre-season salary rumpus hereabouts with their annual declaration of war over Mungo's wages for the 1939 season.

Ever since Mungo came up with the Dodgers they have had trouble signing him. The trouble didn't end there. In the past he has threatened the baseball scene by (a) socking a teammate, (b) socking an opposing player, (c) pulling a no-hit act at the club owners, (d) leaving the team flat for a journey home to Pageland, S. C., and a Leland Standard MacPhail, the boy orator of the Governor, is in the opposite corner from Mungo in the present brawl. He sent Mungo a contract for $5,000, a cut of $10,000 from last year's hire, the other day. Yesterday Mungo bounced it back like a bad check.

"I'm goin' to set right here in Pageland 'till I get a better contract," bellowed Van Mungo. "That's the only contract he'll get. He'll take it if he knows what's good for him," countered MacPhail.

Mungo is well off with $5,000. He reminded one of Walter Johnson last year. He worked only 133 innings, appeared in 24 games, started 18, completed 6, won 4 and lost 11.

Mungo is well off with $5,000. He reminded one of Walter Johnson last year. He worked only 133 innings, appeared in 24 games, started 18, completed 6, won 4 and lost 11.

"I'm goin' to set right here in Pageland 'till I get a better contract," bellowed Van Mungo. "That's the only contract he'll get. He'll take it if he knows what's good for him," countered MacPhail.

That "rubber" game between the Rosendale Firemen and the White Eagles goes on tonight at the latter club's Delaware avenue court, starting at 9 o'clock.

Manager F. J. Wojciechowski of the Polish quintet hopes to see his boys come through with a victory, although the last time the Firemen invaded the hall, they won. The Eagles were victorious in Rosendale.

"My boys are ready for a hard battle," said Wojciechowski this morning. "They want to knock off the Rosendalers to stand out in the series, and to fortify themselves for their Saturday game in Poughkeepsie."

Saturday night the Eagles will play St. Joseph's Alumni in the Bridge City. The Saints hold a one-point win over the Polish boys, having defeated them at White Eagle Hall.

However, since meeting the Alumni, the Eagles have won eight games in a row, taking nine out of 11 contests.

The lineup for tonight: White Eagles—F. Tatarzewski, W. Tatarzewski, W. Lukaszewski, K. Janaszewski, J. Nalepa and Paul Argulewicz.

Rosendale—Gil Kelder, H. Rask, T. Debrosky, J. Dunn, B. Knapp and D. Bush.

The schedule: Blackbirds vs. 156th Field Artillery, 7:30.

White Eagles vs. Rosendale, 9 o'clock.

Dancing after the games.

Followers of the White Eagles desiring to make the Poughkeepsie trip by bus Saturday, are asked to make reservations tonight.

Mistake for Conn

New York, Jan. 10 (AP)—Much as they admired Billy Conn's fighting in his local debut against Fred Apostoli last Friday night, a majority of the critics think the Pittsburgh beauty made a mistake in signing right back for a 15-round return engagement on February 1.

They believe that Apostoli, though again conceding some 10 pounds, will be able to wear Conn down over the longer rout and beat his ears off toward the finish.

Apostoli, as tough and durable as they come, was carrying the battle to his 21-year-old rival in the closing rounds the other night.

The pair have signed what is known as a light-heavyweight contract for the return, which means they may weigh up to 175 pounds so far as the state athletic commission is concerned. However, Conn again has made a "gentleman's agreement" to scale 168, "give or take a pound," Apostoli is a natural 160-pounder.

The consensus seems to be that Conn, having made such a sensational Madison Square Garden debut with a unanimous decision over Apostoli, should pitch immediately into the light-heavyweights and leave Apostoli strictly alone.

The Interfraternal Tournament League met last night at the Elks Club. A large crowd was present to witness the games. Dave Petruski, ace cue wielder of the Vets, turned in a fine exhibition to defeat Freddie Planthaber of the Elks 50-48. Petruski led from start to the finish in a big upset.

Bill Brophy also turned in a neat performance to defeat George Planthaber 50-20. Frank Weiss of the K. of C. won over Oscar Newkirk 50-45 and Johnny Nacarat of the Elks defeated Oscar Newkirk of the Mechanics 50-29.

Most of the shuffleboard matches were closely contested. The Knights and Elks are still tied for first place, each team won three out of four games.

A special match game was played between Jack Feye and Mickey Ryan of the Elks and Ed Hanley and Andy Sweeney of the Knights. The Knights won the game 50-15.

Softball Helps
Says Landis

Belleair, Fla., Jan. 10 (AP)—A good word for softball came today from Judge Kenesaw Mountain Landis, high commissioner of baseball.

The peppery, white-haired czar of America's national pastime, at the Belleair hotel here for his annual winter sojourn, said baseball attendance figures showed no effect from softball and were continuing to increase and added the softball helps baseball.

He likewise saw no prospects for a slump in softball's popularity and no cause for alarm to baseball if one failed to occur.

Two Honors for
Martin Helfinger

Clinton, N. Y., Jan. 10 (AP)—It was a matter of coincidence when Martin Helfinger of Syracuse, N. Y., was selected as Hamilton College's most valuable player on its 1938 football team.

Last night, he was awarded the Richard S. Fowler football trophy, emblematic of the honor.

Fowler, donor of the trophy, was captain of the 1922 Hamilton team which failed to win a single game.

The only other Hamilton team which experienced a victory last season was the 1935 squad, captained by Hilsinger.

WALLACE SETS WORLD RECORD

Wesley Wallace, speedy Fordham University junior, was busy setting an official American record (which is considered a world record) in the 500 meter indoor race at the Brooklyn Knights of Columbus track meet in New York City. His time was 1:04.4 beating the old mark by .6 of a second. The mark is considered a world record since board track running is confined almost entirely to the United States. Shown in second place is Lou Burns, former I. C. 4-A champ.

Board's Report Suggests Changes

Albany, Jan. 10 (Special).—Recommendation that "consideration be given to the erection of a building for additional housing" at the Institution For Male Delinquent, at Nanapanoch, is contained in the latest report of inspection of the prison by Mrs. Cecilia D. Patten, Samuel H. Miller, and Edward R. Case, members of the State Correction Commission.

The list of recommendations embodied in their report, which has just been made public by the commission, also contains the following:

That metal lockers be installed in the state shop.

That electric lights be provided in the class rooms and in the school office.

That the chimneys of the cottage housing inmates at the institution farm be repaired as necessary.

That a small shed be erected at the rear entrance to the farm cottage as outlined in the report.

That funds be made available for the employment of medical and surgical assistance at major operations when necessary.

The institution, the report continues, "was clean and in order throughout" on the date of inspection, November 14.

"The dormitories are very much overcrowded," assert the commissioners, "and in some the cots were so close together, there was insufficient space for the usual night cabinet at the head of each cot."

"The last report of inspection commented on the overcrowding, but was 997, and suggested as a possible solution the installation of additional cells at the ends of the cell blocks where relatively large spaces exist."

"This would somewhat relieve overcrowding but the practicability of the suggestion would have to be decided by engineers. If the population continues to increase at the present rate, the number of cells provided by extension of the blocks would be of little value as a final solution and consideration should be given at this time to the erection of another building for additional housing."

Discussing the population of the institution, the report states there were 1078 inmates on November 14, an increase of 82, or 8.1 per cent above the population at the time of the last inspection, December 22, 1937.

Woodstock school children of the fifth, sixth, seventh and eighth grades heard a lecture Monday morning. Robert Marriott, whose talk was brought here through the million dollar education fund of the youth division of the W. C. T. U., spoke on alcohol and its effects on the human body and nervous system. By a series of clear and amusing comparisons and anecdotes he was able to make himself well understood by the children of the classrooms, who thoroughly enjoyed his entertaining manner.

While at the same time learning an important lesson. He illustrated his talk with tests which the children themselves could perform. He compared the damage done by alcohol to the human nervous system to the short circuits caused when insulation is removed from an electric wiring system. The boys in particular were much entertained when he compared eyes, mouth and heart to the lights, radio and pump operating on an electric system. Mr. Marriott has been heard several times throughout the county, and recently talked at Kingston High School.

Mrs. Dodge to Get 8 Millions From Husband's Estate

Young Widow, Former Telephone Operator, Receives $3,000,000 in Year; Remainder to Mother

Pontiac, Mich., Jan. 10 (AP).—Annie Laurine Dodge, youthful widow of Daniel G. Dodge, eventually will receive approximately $3,000,000 within the next year as the widow's share of her husband's estate under terms of a settlement announced today.

The former Gore Bay (Ont.) telephone operator will receive $3,000,000 of the trust fund of the will of John F. Dodge, automobile manufacturer, for the benefit of his four children. Daniel Dodge's share of the trust fund, $10,000,000, would be payable after the death of all of the elder Dodge's children.

The settlement was effected after an all-day conference yesterday between Paul Oren, attorney for Mrs. Dodge, and counsel for Mrs. Wilson. It was announced today in Oakland county probate court, as a hearing was about to open on Daniel Dodge's will.

Oren agreed to withdraw a petition for reopening of Mrs. Wilson's guardianship of her son. The settlement gets aside a pre-nuptial agreement, incorporated in Daniel Dodge's will, under which the widow was to receive $250,000, a summer residence on Manitoulin Island, Ont., and a few items of personal property as her share of the estate. The remainder of the estate was willed to Mrs. Wilson.

Mrs. Dodge has been receiving $5,000 a month as a widow's allowance pending the outcome of the litigation.

Daniel Dodge died August 13, after a dynamic explosion at his Manitoulin Island summer lodge, where he and his bride of 11 days were spending their honeymoon.

The settlement was effected after an all-day conference yesterday between Paul Oren, attorney for Mrs. Dodge, and counsel for Mrs. Wilson. It was announced today in Oakland county probate court, as a hearing was about to open on Daniel Dodge's will.
